Cameron Alvarado - Associate Project Manager

As an Associate Project Manager, Cameron supports the firm's work with the National Institutes of Health's (NIH) All of Us Research Program.

Previously, Cameron worked at the National Association of Community Health Centers where she helped manage their portfolio of federal and non-federal funding. In this role, Cameron helped create innovative processes and procedures aimed at improving operational efficiency. Her experience with NACHC helped underscore her commitment to healthcare advocacy and the importance of reaching underserved populations.

Cameron holds both a Master's and Bachelor's in Conflict Analysis and Resolution from George Mason University. She is also a certified Associate in Project Management and a certified Salesforce Administrator.

Cameron lives in Alexandria with her husband, Anthony, and their miniature Dachshund, Bachi. Outside of work, she enjoys being with her family, traveling, and cooking.
