PATHWAYS TO PROGRESS

Amanda Miller – Associate

As a Communications Associate, Amanda supports Pyxis’s work with the National Institutes of Health’s (NIH) All of Us Research Program.

Prior to joining Pyxis Partners, Amanda served as an External Relations and Communications Intern at the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) Washington Center, supporting its public affairs and media campaigns in the United States and Canada. She also interned at the Convergence Center for Policy Resolution and for U.S. Senator Edward Markey.

Amanda graduated with a BA in political science in May 2020 and is currently pursuing a Master of Public Policy degree at Penn State University. With a concentration in democracy and governance, her interests and graduate research has been focused on voting rights and election administration.

Amanda currently lives in Washington, DC and loves traveling, cooking, listening to podcasts, and spending time with her friends, family, and dog Benny.
